Marawi Muslims burn US, Israeli flags

CEBUE CITY—About 600 Marawis angered by the "insulting" depictions of Prophet Muhammad in the allegedly Jewish-financed film "Innocence of Muslims" burned huge replicas of the American and Israeli flags during a rally in downtown Marawi City on Monday morning.

Abel Alisma, chair of the Network of Maranao Youth Leaders and Researchers, told the Inquirer by phone that the rally was "spontaneous" and was principally attended by youth and women. "We wanted their [the film's] depictions of the Prophet Muhammad" and were principally attended by youth and women. Google rebuffs US bid to bar video

SAN FRANCISCO—For Google last week, the decision was clear. An anti-Islamic video that provoked violence worldwide was not bar speech under its rules because it did not specifically incite violence against Muslims, even if it mocked their faith.

The White House won't so much as mention the determination, a report the company rebuffed. Although the Obama administration's request was refused, Google, it represented the kind of delicate balancing act that Internet companies confront every day.

These companies, which include communications media like Facebook and Twitter, write their own rules about what kind of expression is allowed, things as diverse as posted political criticism, nudity and sex force as rarely as these reports. And their employees work around the clock to check when users run afoul of their rules.

'Ka Romy' called a rare gem

By Nria Calaga and Lella B. Salazar

NR WAS the kind of lawyer activists would call when confronted in the streets by the police. To those who knew him, he was "Ka Romy."

Romulo Capalagan, who died on Tuesday at 77 after a long illness, could have taken the financially lucrative route of handling well-paying cases, they said. Instead, he chose to defend the political prisoners, the down-trodden, the poor.

For human rights workers, there was no one like Ka Romy. He was a rare gem.

Business rights group Karapatan, told the Inquirer yesterday.

Capalagan's residence is at the Church of the Most Holy on the University of the Philippines campus in Diliman, Quezon City. He will be buried at Everest Hills Memorial Park in Sanata Heights, Marikina City. (AP/WIDE WORLD)

New numbers game to combat 'jueteng'

By Delfin T. Mallari Jr., Deputy Southern Luzon

LUCENA CITY—President Aquino yesterday declared that the controversial small-town lottery would soon be stopped, but he said a new numbers game that would benefit the government and host communities would replace STL.

"STL as an experiment is over," Mr. Aquino told reporters on the sidelines of his visit here to witness the mass oath-taking of new Liberal Party members in Quezon province.

The President said there was a need to stop STL, because it failed to stop out illegal numbers games, particularly "jueteng."

Antibullying Senator Oscar Cruz, an unapologetic advocate, said STL had long been "out of the picture."

Anti-Epal Movement gets big boost from new app

By Paolo G. Manibao

DO YOU want to join the Anti-Epal Movement that was to shame politicians into taking down those posters of themselves that they plaster all over Metro Manila using public funds?

Well, there's an app for this. Organizers of the Anti-Epal Movement have partnered with a local technology start-up, Epal Initiative, to integrate into the mobile application to support this anti-epal drive that the Commission on Elections (Comelec) has asked to stop politicians from posting posters long before the start of the campaign for next year's national elections.

Taiwan wants its sick, erring nationals back

DAVAO is urging the Philippine government to report exactly how thousands arrested in an alleged online hunt after they died and several others hospitalized in crowded makeshift detention facilities, officials said Tuesday.

Philippine authorities rounded up suspected members of a band of pirates, including 21 Indonesians, 36 Chinese and a New Zealander, to make concluded Aug. 20 on 20 boats in metropolitan Manila and nearby island provinces. It was the largest number of single-day arrests in a Philippine anti-piracy operation.

Due to the large numbers the company, including nearly 100 women, were distributed in a greenhouse in a pollen misting camp where one by one the women have died due to a stomach ailment after drinking water of dubious quality. More than 120 other detainees have fallen ill, mostly with severe and fatal, with some afflicted with diarrhoea and dengue fever because the green area was designed for prolonged detention, according to a police report.

Chinese, Taiwanese and New Zealand officials have raised concerns over the conditions in the facility, and the policy report, which recommended that the foreign detainees be deported.

"We want them to be deported to Taiwan as soon as possible," said Peter Huang, spokesperson of the Taipei Economic and Cultural Office, Taiwan's de facto embassy in the U.S.

History of Manila

A plan to deport the Vietnamese last week was postponed after President Aquino ordered authorities to investigate how the migrants managed to enter the Philippines even though several had been previously arrested for suspected online fraud. Justice Secretary Vitaliano (left) said:

The syndicate used the Philippines as a base of operations and targeted victims in China and Taiwan, police said. A

PNP admits there's truth to Lacson claim of 'jueteng' cops

By Marian Rivas

THE PHILIPPINE National Police yesterday said Sen. Pangilo Lacson's claim that some police officials were receiving millions of pesos in "jueteng" payoffs may have some substance of truth.

"We have to address that issue as mentioned by Senator Lacson," the PNP spokesperson, Chief Supt. Genesio Canlas Jr., said yesterday.

"Of course, we cannot ignore Senator Lacson's knowledge of this issue given the fact that he is a former PNP chief. We also know that he has many sources about this issue," Canlas said.

In a news conference in Camp Crame, he said the PNP would look into Lacson's claim that some police officers may be getting between 75 million and 100 million monthly from operations of the illegal numbers game.

Lacson, who emphasized a wider "broad-based" crime-jacking operation when he was the head of the PNP, also said that a provincial police director could be receiving as much as P1.1 million a month in protection money. The senator placed the daily take from parking at P50 million daily.

"We are investigating the reported involvement of police officers in jacking. We have a check and then this. If there is evidence to warrant administrative case, then we will file it," Canlas said.

He and the PNP would give due consideration to Lacson's statements "in light of the ongoing anti-illegal gambling campaign of the PNP."

As to the senator's contention that the anti-illegal gambling campaign would not be successful without police support, Canlas said that the PNP does personnel implications in jacking operations and other illegal activities had been discussed from the talks during the last half of 2012.

The PNP spokesperson, however, could not provide specific figures for demands involving jacking.

"I cannot give you the exact numbers at this time, but the figures are very significant. They're substantial," he said.

He said hundreds more were expected to be arrested or administered for administrative sanctions while others "are being dealt with regular justice."

Canlas said PNP Director Gen. Oscar Alvarado backed him of doing the role of an anti-police official for their failure to carrying out their duties in carrying out the anti-illegal gambling campaign with the PNP's "no-nonsense" attitude.

In June, then Director Secretary Jesus Balmora ordered from their posts Chief Supt. Joseph Calangcay Lacerda of Marikina, Legazpi, Davao City, Alcala, Marikina, and Senior Supt. Roger Almodar Almodar of Marikina, Pangasinan, for doing failure in carrying out their duties.

His first batch of officials personnel are being investigated every year based on the reports every morning," Canlas said.

"This only proves that we are committed to monitoring police personnel who are involved in illegal activities, including those involved in illegal gambling," Canlas said.

Vegetarians push 'meatless Mondays'

Philippines 1

Search for the drive for a World Meatless Lunch, hoping it would develop into an annual event, much smaller to World Day, which the World Wildlife Fund launched in 2009.

The global meatless quest is not for Oct. 1 with the aim of promoting eating vegetables, fruits and alternatives to meat in a week, with Monday designated as a vegetarian day.

Once a week

"This is another thrust to help the planet and public health, and by eating only vegetarian one day a week," Dr. David Duggan, chair of the United Nations Environment Programme, said.

The movement is getting on its feet, with the United Nations Environment Programme, and other groups, launched the day every week, with the aim of promoting eating vegetables, fruits and alternatives to meat in a week, with Monday designated as a vegetarian day.

BPO sector warmly welcomes cybercrime law

By Rita T. Ochoa

THE COUNTRY'S business process outsourcing (BPO) industry, which is growing up to be a 10 percent growth this year, expects the recent passage of landmark laws designed to protect individuals and industries that rely on data usage.

"We're supportive of data privacy and cybercrime laws. It's good to have rules and regulations on rules," Business Process Association of the Philippines (BPA) president Benedict Hernandez said yesterday on the sidelines of the Philippine Economic Summit.

President Aquino recently signed the new Data Privacy Act (Republic Act 10173) and the Cybercrime Prevention Act of 2012.

The former requires public and private enterprises to ensure the confidentiality and integrity of personal information and intellectual property of their operations.

The latter, on the other hand, defines cybercrime and provides for the prevention, investigation, and imposition of penalties related to such acts.

With greater protection of data assured, the BPO industry is confident that it will grow faster in 2013.

President Aquino expressed during the hearing that he did to targeted companies request to expand their operations this year.

Of course, about 12 percent report 15 percent revenue growth, he said.

The Philippines is the top location for contact centers and the sector is expected to grow faster than the forecasted 15 percent.

IT corporate services, healthcare, and other business services are expected to grow even faster at 41 percent.

Overall, the BPO industry in the Philippines is up for a 20 percent year-on-year growth, given diversified offerings and some sectors' sustained competitive moves and incentives, Hernandez said.

Improvements on infrastructure, sustained regulatory commitment and ease of doing businesses, efforts to attract foreign country risk factors and improved consumer marketing also help the BPO industry grow despite the strong peso and other challenges, he noted.

He said BPO operations in the Philippines were 30 percent more expensive than in India and remain much higher in the per-dollar earnings rate with a competitive edge.

The BPO industry, meanwhile, is also ramping up human resources development through scholarships and partnerships with academic institutions to meet its growing demand for talent.

BPAA is the umbrella association for the ITBPO and GIC (Global in-Business Center) industry in the Philippines.

The services sector, which includes the BPO industry, is a major growth driver for the Philippine economy.

PH fastest growing market for smartphones in SE Asia

1 in 4 mobile devices in PH a smartphone, says GfK

By Paolo G. Manalillo

PHILIPPINES emerged the fastest growing market for smartphones in Southeast Asia, with the number of devices jumping more than four-fold in 2011 from the same period last year.

Singapore-based research firm GfK in a report released Monday showed that one in four mobile devices sold in the Philippines is of July was a smartphone.

The Philippines continues to account for the fastest growth in smartphone sales, with 106 percent in smartphone sales, according to the fastest growing market for smartphones in Southeast Asia region, GfK said.

"The Philippines was also the country with the highest jump in smartphone sales within a year, from 15.2 percent," he noted.

The sales growth in the country was significantly higher than the 76 percent growth recorded in Southeast Asian region smartphone sales, with the Philippines, Singapore, Malaysia, Thailand, Indonesia, Vietnam and Cambodia.

"Smartphone sales are up in the most popular mobile phone type and by segments in the region's emerging markets," GfK digital marketing research director Gerald Tan said in a statement. "However, smartphone adoption is slowing at a rapid pace."

Smartphone sales, which include low-priced "feature phones," rose in the same country by 28 percent year-on-year as of July.

While mobile phone sales rose in the region, 28 million more were sold in smartphones. Of the 55.7 million sold as new phones in the seven-month period, 50.7 million were smartphones.

GfK and the smartphone growth in the region was driven primarily by the entry of low-cost affordable devices worth $100 to $200 each, which are now dominating the market.

"High margin manufacturers recently announced their intention to launch low-cost smartphones priced below $100, the device will be within the reach of an even larger pool of consumers and the market is expected to grow even faster after these models are widely available," Tan said.

"This move is likely to significantly expedite the demand surge for smartphones in the region's yet to be saturated feature phone user population, which we expect to see sustained year-over-year growth for at least the next two years," he said.

In a previous report, GfK said the smartphone penetration of mobile phones in the Philippines was a major factor behind the high growth.

The region's most mature markets are Malaysia and Singapore, where smartphone penetration is at 34 percent.

In India like the Philippines, three-quarters of phones sold are still feature phones, which are mostly used for social and messaging.

The country's growth in smartphones is also driven by the fact that the smartphone market with its flexible post-paid plans is a 3d to 4d market for consumers to develop.

Maxicare and CCAIP: Ensuring the Health and Well-Being of Contact Center Agents

Having a talented and driven workforce is vital to the success of any organization. In the Philippines, where contact center agents are the backbone of many businesses, ensuring their health and well-being is a top priority.

Maxicare, the country's leading health insurance organization (HMO) in the Philippines, has been a pioneer in ensuring the health and well-being of contact center agents. Through its various programs, Maxicare has been able to provide a wide range of health services to its members, including medical consultations, hospitalizations, and more.

The CCAIP (Contact Center Agents Insurance Program) is a joint initiative of Maxicare and CCAIP to provide health insurance coverage to contact center agents. This program is designed to ensure that contact center agents have access to the same high-quality health services as other professionals in the Philippines.

Maxicare and CCAIP are committed to ensuring the health and well-being of contact center agents. Through their various programs, they are able to provide a wide range of health services to their members, including medical consultations, hospitalizations, and more.

T-bill rates fall as demand for securities surges

By Michelle Y. Reyes

TREASURY last week's primary bill sale saw the lowest bid due to the country's favorable macroeconomic indicators and on reports that the US Federal Reserve would inject more funds into the US economy, boosting appetite for government-backed securities.

According to National Treasury Secretary Sio, the decline in T-bill rates was triggered from the latest developments in the domestic and external fronts.

The strong appetite for the T-bills was a natural reaction of the market to the Treasury's influence and the government's budget deficit as very much in control. "We said in a briefing after yesterday's T-bill auction.

Oversubscription marks auction of gov't debt notes

The 30-day bill reached 6.744 percent in yesterday's auction, down from 30.4 basis points from the 3.248 percent recorded two weeks ago. The rate is the lowest in nearly a year.

But for the three-month government securities reached 77.244 billion, way higher than the 15 billion worth of bids offered last only by the government. Not wanting to believe more than what is programmed, the government accepted just 15 billion worth of bids for the three-month securities.

The 182-day bill reached 1.049 percent, down by 20.6 basis points from the previous rate of 1.733 percent.

Bids for the six-month debt paper amounted to 29,263 billion, exceeding the 17.2 billion worth of the government. The auction committee accepted just 17.2 billion worth of bids.

The 364-day bill reached 1.399 percent, down by 11.4 basis points from 2.22 percent previously.

Bids for the one-year debt paper hit 14 billion, exceeding the debt offer of 14 billion. Again, the auction committee accepted more than the bidding program and accepted just 14 billion worth of bids.

The said bid did a round of "quantity" meeting" on QES, announced by the US Federal Reserve, was contributed to by an increase in demand for T-bills.

QE refers to the effects of a country's central bank to stimulate the economy in various ways through the purchase of bonds. Under the QE3, the US Fed said it would attempt to buy a billion dollars worth of mortgage-backed securities to help stimulate its beleaguered economy.

The funds to be injected by the US Federal Reserve are expected to spill over to emerging economies, including the Philippines. In particular, local banks of the funds may mean more of the money to inject more funds into emerging markets, such as peso-denominated securities.

As a result, the market prices may also advantage of US stimulus by buying government securities that are in the increasing demand for T-bills.

Going improvements in external indicators, the government expects the budget deficit this year to stay within the set limit of 3.75% of GDP, compared to 4.5 percent of the country's total gross domestic product.

Greenergy, Dutch firm to put up hydro plants

PHILIPPINE-based Greenergy Holdings Inc. (formerly M&S Group) has tied up with Dutch firm, Greenergy Capital, to put up multiple hydroelectric projects and other related investments in the Philippines.

In a declaration to the Philippine Stock Exchange yesterday, Greenergy Holdings reported that on Sept. 10 it signed a preliminary agreement with Greenergy Capital to develop, construct and manage the projects.

The two companies hope to provide Filipino stakeholders access to environmentally friendly and sustainable sources of renewable energy.

Hydrogen Capital has developed a hydroelectric concept based on a portfolio of proprietary turbine technologies with a variety of added value components.

Under the preliminary agreement, both parties will establish a joint venture to explore through the incorporation of a new legal company under a 50:50 equity arrangement involving Greenergy Holdings. The proposed company will have a authorized capital stock of about 4 million shares, or P25,000,000 or a net P54.40 per share.

According to Greenergy, the proposed is still subject to the company's preliminary financial and technical feasibility study and other diligence and commercial due diligence agreements.

The parties' detailed schedule, subject to review, on the signing of the joint venture agreement within 121 days from the signing of the preliminary agreement.

Apart from the proposed company, Greenergy is also looking to invest in the 40-megawatt biomass facility of San Carlos Power Inc. the leading firm which is expected to come to the P412-million capital include of Donaback Franchise (refillable) unit, a local subsidiary of the Transadip Ltd.

of Asset Management (Dutch-built AG of Dutch).

The company is also looking to local bond firm, Indaba Africa Corp., which is currently engaged in manufacturing and trade of ethanol and other bio-fuels. It has already acquired the so-called "sustainable" rights to 25,000 hectares of land for the first phase in connection with its plan of putting up a cogeneration bioethanol and power plant.

Greenergy said provided plans to raise its net worth projects worth $1.3 billion with over a 10 percent increase of capacity over the next 10 years.

Electric co-ops still reeling from debt

By Amy R. Reyes

ELECTRIC cooperatives continue to reel from obligations to power generation companies, even as they stand at P13.16 billion as of end June this year—seven after the government announced P13 billion debt would be taken by 2014.

Power utilities in Mindanao accounted for bulk of the total debt, owing power generation a total of P1.3 billion, lower than the Electric Cooperative (Manila) has a total of P1.3 billion in obligations, the highest among the electric companies.

Energy Secretary Jose Rene Aldecoa said that because electric cooperatives are highly politicized in terms, management and financial problems usually arise.

According to Aldecoa, these are problems that prevent the local branches of electric cooperatives that do not make payments to power generation firms on time or the grey debtors because that should not have been given out in the first place.

At times, some of the electric cooperatives are being

BSP expected to raise forex reserve forecast

THE RESERVE Bank of the Philippines is set to raise its forecast on the country's foreign exchange reserves, after the figure exceeded the $80-billion mark in August.

According to BSP Governor Benjamin S. Aquino, the central bank is in the process of reviewing its projection on foreign exchange flows.

Three institutional investors (BSP) for the year was originally forecast to reach $75 billion.

"We have to adjust the BOP (balance of payments) upward. The review is ongoing and we will make adjustments of the country's need," Aquino said, adding during a press conference yesterday at the Philippine International Convention Center following a meeting for the Philippine government's economic review.

Last June, treasury officials reduced its original 2012 forecast of $79 billion due to increases in the prolonged war in the region. The dollar's value against the Euro added force that there would be a decline in foreign portfolio investments in the Philippines.

The "BOP surplus" continued to show strength in the second half.

The central bank earlier this month said that the US dollar was up $1.25 billion by the end of August, or 6 percent from the $75.94 billion reported in the same period last year.

QE (quantitative easing) is a monetary policy used by central banks to increase the money supply, pay for assets, and engage in financial operations with the rest of the world.

According to the Bank for International Settlements, the latest QE is enough to cover about a sixth of the world's supply of money.

At the end of August, the BSP's foreign exchange reserves stood at $80.1 billion, up from $78.9 billion in July.

The BSP's foreign exchange reserves are used to cover the country's foreign exchange needs, pay for assets, and engage in financial operations with the rest of the world.

SPAHOLICS It's Bath time in England

A visit to the world's best-preserved, most ancient spa reveals a grand history

By Catherine Pellegrino
Contributor

AFTER THE HYPE and speculation, London Olympic 2012, organizers have that a side trip to the City of Bath is a relaxing experience, even past its prime as the best preserved spa town in the world—the Roman Bath in the City of Bath is a must-see.

The Roman Bath in Bath, England, is a must-see. It is a well-preserved ancient spa. The bath was built by the Romans in the 1st century AD. It is a well-preserved ancient spa. The bath was built by the Romans in the 1st century AD.

"I don't want to be somebody's wish,
if somebody likes me, I want them to like the real me, not what they think I am. And I don't want them to worry if around inside
I want them to know me, so I can feel it too."

What kind of target will we see in "Wilsons"?

A very dangerous and disturbed Angel because of who happens to be your character. Or find himself doing things that have people who have been hit.

When made you do the character?

The incident of Mercedes Cabral doing it made the project very interesting, but I can't most available food.

What's your advice to "victims" of any kind?

We all become victims every now and then, but it's how we respond to the situation that defines us.

But you've had like a victim?
A little because of my own doing... but I learned never to blame anyone, so that I grew up seeing out the situation.

What don't people know about Angel Aquino?
That I'm gay and that I'm a slut.

It's complicated! Obviously, it's bearing steadily and peacefully, and sailing very near and there.

What was the hardest part about shifting to acting from modeling?
